

MassDevelopment's Sean Calnan with Colin O'Keefe and Rich Relich of Arch Street Development. (Left to Right)

Arch Street Development

Millions of people in Massachusetts take for granted the roof over their heads every night. Arch Street Development has recently repaired a roof that is very important to more than 40 families in North Adams, and it's making it a little more affordable. With a site assessment loan and a $120,000 Brownfields lead and asbestos grant from MassDevelopment, Arch Street Development has converted the former Clark Biscuit Bakery into affordable housing for working families. Aside from a new roof, the 43-unit Clark Biscuit Apartments also feature new energy-efficient windows, significant concrete and brick restoration, and a complete renovation of the interior. For the tenants, who began moving into their new homes in mid-October, this former bakery is now home sweet home.

